DEAR SUPPORTERS,

Equity. It’s one of our core values. At Women Employed, we believe every woman should have the ability to achieve financial security for herself and her family. In a tumultuous year for our country, we have never wavered from this value. With you, we’ve forged ahead to ensure all women can access fair workplaces, quality jobs, and education and training leading to better opportunities. In this report, you’ll read about crucial advances we’ve made this year on equal pay, paid sick time, and pathways to college and careers. The key to our success is you. More than ever, in 2017 we’ve seen the power of women coming together. It really is up to us. Thanks for your continued support.

Sincerely,

Iliana A. Mora
President and CEO

Lisa Pattis
Board Chair

GALVANIZING A NEW WAVE OF ADVOCATES

Activism is in Women Employed’s DNA. From our early days organizing female office workers in downtown Chicago, to our current work mobilizing advocates around issues like equal pay, paid sick time, and access to education, we recognize the power of women working together.

This year we have seen new threats to women’s economic security, and we have seen old threats revived. But we have seen even more women rise to the occasion and stand up to make their voices heard.

And we have given thousands of those women a place to be advocates—whether by marching and rallying; writing or calling legislators; or volunteering to get involved—channeling their passion into concrete actions that are making a real difference.

It has been inspiring to see so many women step up and speak out about things that matter to us all. And we’re not done yet. Join us. Visit womenemployed.org/act to see what you can do today.

CALLS, EMAILS, AND LETTERS TO ELECTED OFFICIALS
Despite the enormous advances women have made in every industry, women still earn less than men, and the wage gap has hardly budged in the last decade. Race compounds the issue. For example, Latinas make just 54 cents to a white man’s dollar.

One reason the wage gap is so persistent? The common practice of employers asking job candidates for their salary history. When a woman has experienced unfair wages in one job, a salary offer based upon those previous wages perpetuates the inequality.

Ending this practice is one key to closing the wage gap. Women Employed spoke to legislators and the media about the importance of banning salary history questions during the hiring process. We also joined a coalition of partner organizations to advocate for a “No Salary History” law in Illinois. The bill passed with bipartisan support, and we mobilized scores of advocates to call the governor and encourage him to sign the bill into law.

The governor vetoed the bill, but we’re not done yet. We’re building support for an override. Visit womenemployed.org/equalpay to see where this measure stands!

Education is the key to a better future for many women and their families. But it can be hard to know where to start when you don’t have a high school diploma or the math, reading, writing, or English skills to succeed in college.

That’s where Women Employed comes in. Through our partnership with City Colleges of Chicago, we are championing innovative programs that are helping more women get degrees in fields such as information technology, healthcare, and the culinary arts. These “bridge” programs help students build basic academic skills in the context of their chosen career field. With City Colleges, we have co-written lesson plans for programs in 5 industries, which nearly 1,000 people from colleges and community providers across the country have downloaded.

The data show that these programs work. This year, the healthcare bridge we helped create was chosen as a model in a national study funded by the U.S. Department of Education. The research highlights ground-breaking programs that are making a difference for students, and is aimed at helping education providers across the country improve their own programs, which will mean brighter futures for even more women.

HELPING CHICAGOLAND WORKERS EXERCISE THE RIGHT TO PAID SICK TIME

Everyone gets sick. At Women Employed, we believe that every working person should have the right to take the time they need to get better without fear of losing their jobs.

In the summer of 2016, Women Employed won a major victory when the paid sick time ordinances we advocated for in Chicago and suburban Cook County passed. The new laws, which went into effect in July of 2017, apply to all working people—whether part-time or full-time; hourly or salaried; and regardless of employer size.

But research showed that up to 80 percent of the more than half a million hardworking people who stood to benefit didn't know about their new rights.

We jumped into action, launching the largest public education campaign in Women Employed’s history. We built an online hub—sicktime.org—with all the information people need to know to exercise their new rights. We ran ads on trains and online; spoke to the media; utilized social media; and worked with 60 community organizations and government agencies to get the word out.

Now, thousands more people know about their right to earn and use paid sick time.

MORE THAN 1 MILLION PEOPLE REACHED THROUGH TRAIN ADS, NEWS STORIES, COMMUNITY OUTREACH, AND ONLINE RESOURCES
